Family Cheered When Gastric Ulcer Proves To Be 'Non-Malignant': President Is at Bedside.

OPERATION TAKES HOUR, 45 MINUTES

Doctor Says Executive's Son Must Stay in Hospital for Three Weeks.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Sept. 11 .-(P)-James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President was in "splendid" condition, physicians said today after he underwent an operation at the Mayo clinic for relief from a gastric ulcer.

The President was at St. Mary's ospital, where the operation was performed. Physicians said that the ulcer had proved to be "nonmalignant." Stephen Early, secretary to the chief executive, said the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and James' wife, Betsy, had been principally worried that the ulcer would be malignant. The family was very happy, Early continued, that this did not prove true. As used by physicians the term "malignant ulcer" refers to one in volving cancer.

Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician who attended the operation, asserted:

"Jim is in splendid condition. His pulse and respiration now are approximately normal again." "Good Luck." Says F. D. R.

The President saw James for 45 minutes before the latter was wheeled away to the operating room. As James was taken out, the President said: "Good luck." His eldest son and confidential adviser smiled in reply.

James' operation originally had been scheduled for tomorrow. The President was advised by Gray, however, that an operation today would be preferable.

The chief executive, who arrived here by special train this morning, agreed and Gray decided to France Acts operate at once.

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 11. (UP)-Fuehrer Adolf Hitler today exhorted the crack units of his storm troopers to stand ready for "heavy fighting" and flung down a defiant challenge to the "enemies" of Germany.

Der Fuehrer's fighting speech, which whipped 102,000 uniformed Nazis to high frenzy in Nurnberg's Luitpold arena, came on the eve of his eagerly awaited speech that may go down in history as the turning point to peace or war. Warning Irks Nazis.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 12, 1938.

TREAT MOTORISTS FAIRLY.

The plan of the police department to record speeding and drunken driving violations on state drivers' licenses upon conviction in court or after forfeiture of collateral by the defendant has merit in the campaign to eliminate dangerous and unfit motorists from the streets of Atlanta and the roads of Georgia. Any earlier notation of the offense would be unfair, and the police department has taken the only step which will prove feasible in providing law enforcement officers with knowledge of a previous record on the part of the offender.

Today, it is possible for a dangerous driver to forfeit his collateral, which is generally nominal, and avoid appearance before a court when a speeding charge is booked against him. The license, in this event, could be called in for proper notation. Drunken driving, of course, is a state offense and there the usual procedure is forfeiture of bond and issuance of a writ for the offender. But should in either case the motorist avoid the placing of the record on the license, then a court in some other county might easily permit a second or third offense to be lightly punished and allow the reckless motorist to continue his path of wanton disregard for

The plan of the police department is, however, but one phase in the highway patrol and drivers' license system which calls for an examination in the light of the experience of the new organization. In so far as the highway patrol is concerned, there has not been a word of criticism and the troopers have made an enviable record.

But several complaints have been made of a practice which, if continued or allowed to spread, can wreck the entire system and make Georgia a state to be avoided by tourists. As it now operates, the highway patrol makes the arrest, but must turn over the prisoner to the county in which the arrest is made for trial. In the case of a motorist from another section of the state, or from another state, this usually requires the posting of a bond for trial appearance. In one case this collateral was $50 and it was alleged the county officer setting the bond warned the motorist that if he appeared for trial, which had been set for the following week, the fine would probably be the same amount. Where county officers operate under the archaic fee system, this temptation is only too likely to arise. The highway patrolman is duty-bound to make the arrest and has no choice but to turn over the motorist to the mercy of the individual county. Abuses in those counties will turn motorists away from the section, or the state, more than any other prac-

The complaints thus far received are but straws in the wind. One of these was particularly reasonable. The caller admitted he had been speeding. The state patrolman had been polite, sympathetic and even apologetic. But the minute the county officer took over, things changed and the motorist then had one county on his books which he will forever avoid. And, he said, it was a county in which many residents make their living from tourists. The county officer made his fee, but that county's residents lost an untold amount in future trade because of his impoliteness and unreasonable-

In the north, where abuses have not been wiped out, automobile groups publish regular booklets telling motorists which counties and states to avoid lest they run into just such unpleasantness. Georgia will be on those lists unless these, perhaps isolated, abuses are wiped

It should be possible for the state to have counties agree to set collaterals and fines for highway offenses at reasonable figures. And these should be the same amount which would be assessed a resident of that county in a similar violation. Most certainly in counties which will not join in a movement of this kind, highway patrol officers could exercise discretion. The motorist is entitled to a polite hearing, no matter how guilty, and is entitled to a reasonable collateral or fine.

Otherwise the whole purpose of the traffic safety system will be defeated and the state will lose a now rapidly growing income from

NAVY DAY

Little more than a month from today the nation will celebrate Navy Day. More significance attaches to the event this year than ever before in the pregnant history of the sea arm of national defense. More than at any time since the founding of the republic, the people look to the massive bulk of the battleships, to the sleek cruisers and the trim destroyers, as the bulwark of national safety and an assurance that European aggression will be kept from the shores of this hemisphere.

Interest of Atlanta and Georgia will naturally be heightened this year because of the naming of a light cruiser the U.S.S. Atlanta and the prospect that one of the new battleshipsthe last word in fighting power-will be named the U. S. S. Georgia. It is with justice that these ships be thus named, for Atlanta is undoubtedly the most navy-minded inland city of the country, while Georgia has contributed to the building of every naval vessel since the founding of the nation. The oldest ship listed as active on the navy register is built of Georgia lumber—the Frigate Constitution, in which rests the beginnings of the glorious traditions of the men who sail in American ships.

In 1797, when the U.S.S. Constitution was launched, the navy was one of "wooden ships and iron men." Today, that navy is one of steel ships and keen, highly-trained men. It now comprises some 560 vessels and more than 1.000 planes, manned by more than 100,000 men who are in turn backed by some 150,000 others in the shore bases in the reserve and comprising the civilian establishment. Probably 200 of the approximately 560 vessels are decommissioned. Eighty-five or so more are not fighting craft. But 250 vessels are fighting craft able to stand up against the best ships afloat today, manned by men whose esprit de corps has never been equalled in any fighting arm.

All of these ships, these men and this morale have been woven into a national insurance policy costing today approximately $550,000,000 a year and cheap at the price. For just so long as American sea power can match that of any other nation will this hemisphere escape the turmoil today besetting Europe.

Navy Day is October 25. Atlanta and Georgia and the nation have a new and deeper stake in the navy which should be reflected in the interest shown that day.

PROTECTING MEN AT WORK

While tremendous progress has been made throughout the years in developing safeguards to protect the workman while on the job, much remains to be done according to W. H. Cameron, managing director of the National Safety Council. Nine thousand workmen's lives can be saved annually and injuries prevented to 750,-000 others, within a few years, if most of the unsafe plants in the United States install sound and recognized safety measures.

Since the founding of the council 25 years ago the annual industrial death toll has gradually decreased from approximately 35,000 to 18,000. During the same period over 270,000 lives have been saved and injuries prevented to 27,000,000 workmen, according to Cameron. It is further pointed out that the indirect cost of the average industrial accident amounts to four times the direct cost

Lack of initiative in bringing about safety measures and devices is particularly notorious in the small and medium sized plants. This is not understandable when, according to the same authority, it is entirely possible for a company to cut its losses from accident in half within a single year and save money thereby. Records indicate many plants have reduced their accident losses 80 to 90 per cent within a period of five years. Many plants have gone three, four and five years without a single disabling accident among their employes.

The council feels that some 18,000 workmen's lives are being needlessly sacrified every year, while 1.500.000 injuries are unnecessary. It is not reasonable to suppose these accidents could be eliminated entirely, but if the judgment of the council is to be given proper weight these losses can again be reduced by half within a comparatively few years. The experience in accident prevention acquired during the last quarter century should prove invaluable in hastening the desired end. Safety men, however, cannot do it alone. Neither can industry nor the workers. All three, working together. can accomplish wonders. The dividends in human life, not to mention the savings in dollars, should be a sufficient urge.

Editorial of the Day

BALLOTS BETTER THAN GUNS

(From the Columbia State.)

Pre-election oratory is warm, candidates and their followers wax hot; but the battle of the ballots 99 times out of 100 is quiet, decent and utterly untrammelled. In short, the election, carried out with fairness, is the obviously civilized way of arriving at the will of the people. Voting is a glorious evolution from physical combat. In the dawn of human history, men settled everything by force. The chief or patriarch with the largest fighting force won Somewhere in this dim age came the dawn of reason. Instead of killing each other off, why not simply count heads and let the chief with the larger number have his way? Counting heads, or taking the poll, became the very foundation stone of peace between families, tribes, and later, between parties or divisions in nations. Of course, democracy did not spring full grown from this brilliant discovery of how not to fight it out. Tyrants of old, as of today, deprived their people of freedom of expression; and in nations where democracy with its machinery of free bal loting prevails, the citizenry have won their right to vote only after bitter struggle.

Seeing the throngs walking in and out of a large polling place, the whole business looks so simple today. It all rests, however, on the willingness of the people to put their opinions and wishes to the test of the poll, or counting of heads; and their equal willingness to abide by decisions as expressed by the majority.

Is it impossible that in what we think the most enlightened period of all history, men and nations can apply the same principle to the settling of today's great problems, instead of drawing apart into so many hostile armed camps, and waitg with mixed eagerness and dread the command of a small group of "higher-ups" that we spring at each others throats? Is there any doubt that the masses want peace?

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

TYDINGS CONFIDENT WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The voters of the free state of Maryland are straggling to the polls, to decide one of the great purge primaries. Along with many less prejudiced observers, Millard E. Tydings is convinced the Maryland voters won't purge him. Indeed, the senator is so sure of victory that he already imagines himself the Democratic conservatives' ideal 1940 candidate.

If the personalities of the contestants were the only issue (as they certainly are not), the predictions of the Maryland outcome might be very different. Like his opponent, Davy John Lewis, the poor coal miner's boy, Millard Tydings began life humbly. But the similarity ends there. If Davy Lewis' career is a story of the similarity ends there. If Davy Lewis' career is a story of the American spirit, Millard Tydings' is a monument to uninterrupted SMART VOTE You can see the difference just by looking at the two men. In Davy Lewis, chunky, excitable, with the clear, idealist's eye, there are still traces of the nine-year-old child who went to work as a pit boy. But in Millard Tydings, tall, lantern-jawed, wearing his expression of sardonic self-satisfaction as easily as his expensive clothes, you can find no hint of the ragged kid who used to hang around the docks at Havre de Grace. He now resembles a successful stock broker.

It's a long way from the hig new Tydings country place to the

It's a long way from the big. new Tydings country place to the Havre de Grace docks. The man who started Millard Tydings on the Democratic journey was Murray Vandiver, then chairman of the Democratic state central committee, a power in Maryland politics and the first citizen of Havre de Grace. Tydings' family was poor, but Vandiver was the sort of fellow who knew everybody in his home town. Young Tydings was smart and hard-working. Van-diver got him a scholarship in the Maryland Agricultural College, then helped him through law school. Under Vandiver's guidance, Tydings had formed political ambitions. And so when he was only 23 years old, in 1913, Vandiver helped him to be elected to the Maryland house of delegates.

Tydings' service in the Maryland legislature is remembered for only one incident. After a time, there was a rebellion against old Goo-goos and political competitors Vandiver. to unseat him from the Maryland state treasuryship. The fight was close, and in the end, Vandiver lost by one vote. That vote was cast by Millard Tydings.

The vote was a shrewd one. In the war, Tydings served with distinction. Vandiver's enemies were on top in Havre de Grace as well as in the state. They backed the genial young veteran for congress. He served two terms, and might have remained a representative forever if it hadn't been for a slight misunderstanding between Albert C. Ritchie and Maryland's grand old man, Frank

HAVES AND HAVE NOTS Out of the misunderstanding Millard Tydings emerged by the purest happen-chance, as a compromise candidate for the United States senate. No one was more surprised than he when Furse and Ritchie commanded him to run; no one was more gratified when he

In the senate, his work has been remarkable for agile flipflopping. In the Hoover tariff fight, he voted one way on a straw hat duty in the evening, got word from Baltimore's hat manufacturers during the night, and changed his vote the next morning. Only a couple of months ago, he made a stirring oration against politics in relief one day. And the next he voted against the Hatch amendment, outlawing politics in relief.

He has steadfastly opposed the New Deal, leading a number of important battles. He can be a forthright fighter, as in the court bill struggle. And he can be a useful legislator, as in 1935, when he mocked the outrageous and vastly costly pork-barrel flood control

Nowadays he leads a happy life. His wife, an extremely pretty woman, is the daughter of Joseph E. Davies. Now that the old lawyer-lobbyist is ambassador to Belgium and the husband of a breakfast food fortune, the Tydings family may be considered to be securely perched among the haves. The have not days are over.

THE MARYLAND ISSUES Of course, Millard Tydings' personality is not the issue in Maryland. The issues are the President's intervention and the old struggle between conservatives and innovations. It might be added that, as it looks now, even these weighty issues will be decided by a contest between run-of-the-mine political Obligation NEW YORK, Sept.

Of Britain 11.—It is easy to sound off about Great Britain's sacred obligation to go to war again, if necessary, to save Czechoslovakia from the foul invader. A case can be made out for that.

But war happens to be a deeply personal matter to every individ-ual who must do the actual fighting, and those individuals, in the main, are boys and young men, much like Americans of the same age. Those who would be called on to do the fighting include Canadian boys and young men who are no more intimately acquainted or personally concerned with a border fight in the middle part of Europe than Americans.

The Canadian border, that un-armed imaginary line which is the only international boundary of which they have any first-hand international boundary knowledge, is not stout enough to quarantine the duty to fight and be lacerated or killed. If a Canadian or an English boy has a personal duty to fight for democracy in Czechoslovakia, a land he never saw, it is only a fine technicality which relieves an American of the same duty. Certainly, Americans admit no such obligations. But, nevertheless, there are Americans who hold Great Britain up to scorn because human beings in high office hesitate to commit individual men and boys to this war.

Boys and Men Granted that Germany, if Hitler gets Fight Wars away with it in Czechoslovakia, will push on, demanding, seizing more and more in a drive to the east, and that he would eventually embarrass or endanger the British empire, the fact still remains that when the decision is made hundreds of thousands of individual human beings, most of them young men, will have to give up studies, their work, their homes and the decencies of life to go to a foreign land and fight. By trying it on hundreds of workers, engaged at various tasks, they proved conclusively that praise is a force as real as electricity. Its effect is precisely that of a liquid stimulant—without the bad reaction. It does something to the glands or some other mysterious mechanism, and increases the efficiency of both mind and muscle. The whole system purrs with smoother power, like a knocking motor given a whiff of ethyl.

The worth of praise is not a new discovery.
Years ago, before the public had heard about child psychology, there were wise parents who made use of it. One of these, a mother, had a 12-year-old son whose chief delight was to tinker with type and ink in his father's print shop.

One hot summer day he came home at noon with his sleeves rolled high, washed his face and hands, and sat down at the table with printer's ink smeared from his wrists to his elbows.

An unwise parent would have reproved him, but his mother remarked in a casual tone: "Bobby, if I had arms as pretty as yours, I'd keep them clean." He may have admired his arms thereafter somewhat more than their contour warranted, but at least they were scrubbed as re-

Using praise as a bribe may not be ethical, and certainly there is no good in the flattery used to bait a trap. In fact, all fulsome and unmeant flattery is an insult, for it says in effect: "You don't deserve this, and I don't mean it, but you are simple enough to think I do."

But while flattery is shameful, honest praise that is well de-served is a just reward for merit and a contribution to human

GERMANY DENIES TALKING OF FORCE

Berlin Says-'Until Now'-Only Foreigners Are Mentioning Strife.

BERLIN (Monday), Sept. 12 .-(UP)—The German government said today, in a semi-official statement, that only foreign nations have spoken of the possibility of a "forcible" German solution of the Czechoslovak crisis.

The statement in the form of inspired comment made available to the foreign press, was in answer to Britain's Sunday declarathat Britain will fight if Fuehrer Adolf Hitler attempts any sudden blow at the Czechs.

It was explained that the probability of a German solution of force "until now has been discussed only outside Germany."

Whether the words "until now" meant that Hitler might conform to such fears in his Nurnberg speech tonight was a question that aroused deep speculation.

Speaks Tonight.

With Goering's saber-rattling, capped by a promise that if war comes "Germany will win," and Hitler's exhortation to the stormroopers to be ready to fight again if necessary, the stage-setting was complete for Hitler's pronouncement at 7 p. m. (2 p. m. Atlanta time) Monday. If Hitler takes a pacific attitude toward Czechoslovakia he will soothe the worst war scare experienced by Europe since the July days of 1914. If he is belligerent, none can say what may happen in Europe.

Nobody in Nurnberg—perhaps not even Hitler himself as yet knew tonight what he would say. But it was generally believed in view of the militant tone of speeches during the last 24 hours, that the "build up" was for some sharp pronouncement and that Hitler would announce his determination to "see that the Sudetens get justice."

As to the manner of bringing about that "justice," there was nothing more than a flood of rumors and speculation.

May Demand Plebiscite.

Many Nazis, particularly the ex-tremists, believed Hitler would ome out openly with a demand for a plebiscite in the Sudetenland, a development which Germans were confident would bring the 3,500,000 "comrades" into the Reich by an overwhelming vote and possibly would be indorsed by Great Britain with little difficulty. because of the resumption of minority reform negotiations beand the Praha government, might not even mention the Czechoslo-vak question unless it is to berate the western powers for assertedly plunging Europe into "war jitters" without cause.

GOLD SHIELD STORAGE PLANT PLEASES MANY HOUSEWIVES

BIG STORAGE PLANT ON TRINITY AVENUE

Impressed With Enormous Value of Scores of Articles in Storage.

Scores of Atlanta housewives ot only received a cordial welcome to the big storage plant of the Gold Shield group of cleaners and launderers, at 169 Trinity avenue, during their two visiting days last week, but they caught a general view of the well-equipped and carefully planned storage arrangements whereby furs, clothand household articles are safely and well preserved for

During the two days of visiting, thrown open as a special occasion for housewives to see for themselves how their articles are cared for, hundreds of interested women—and even a number of men— visited the plant. Many were the compliments passed along to the Gold Shield officials on the care and special arrangements made to insure proper storage. They were especially impressed with the great array of goods now in storage and with the variety and enormous value of articles they Among many kinds of articles in storage there were expensive furs, fur-trimmed garments of all kinds, wool garments, carpets, rugs, draperies, blankets, comforts, quilts and other miscellaneous articles too numerous to

Air-Conditioning.

No one feature of the visit was more interesting and impressive than the air-conditioning arrangement of the plant, and they were especially interested, too, in the moth eradicating chambers, where every form of insect infestation is nated from articles stored in the plant.

The Gold Shield group is composed of nine prominent launder-ers and dry cleaners: American, Capital City, Excelsior, Guthman, May's, Piedmont, Trio and Troy-Peerless in Atlanta, and Decatur Laundry in Decatur. A telephone call to any one of them will put the entire Gold Shield facilities at the disposal of any of its patrons. S. R. Greenblatt, president of Gold Shield group, while realizing that September is the largest "moving month" in the year, states that many people have not yet settled in their new place, and suggests that Gold Shield's help is important in making the new home into which they may be moving more attractive by the cleaning and brightening processes of his group on furniture, drap-eries, etc. "We clean upholstered furniture, window shades, curtains, drapes, rugs and carpets," he says, "and our cleaning is New life is thus results.

STATE SENATOR WILL RECEIVE THE SUPPORT OF ALL GOOD CITIZENS

Senator Millican fought successfully to make Fulton County a separate State Senatorial district.

He now offers for the first full term in the new 52d district. Fulton County citizens will reward him for this great service, with an overwhelming majority.

The people will not forget that his opponent first tried to have Millican's name barred from the ballot and get the office by a political trick, without giving them the right to select their own State Senator.

Senator Millican gave us permanent registration for Atlanta citizens, and a real secret ballot.

Senator Millican gave to Fulton County citizens their zoning laws and protection of their homes from nuisances in the unincorporated areas.

Senator Millican has been the friend of the laboring men and women of Fulton County, and has supported all measures for their good.

Senator Millican has always opposed waste and extravagance. He is always found on the side of civic decency and clean and honest administration of public affairs.

The people will not be fooled by lastminute charges and scurrilous literature distributed all over Fulton County by his desperate opponent and his hidden backers.

Cast your ballot for a tried and trusted public official, who has the respect and confidence of the great mass of good citizens.

Harvest Month at RICH'S

There's a tang in the air . . . there's a lilt in your heart . . . there's a heady, bubbling, joy-of-living feeling running through the world. And suddenly . . . you MUST have hundreds of things you've been doing without!

Harvest is in! And the Cream of the Fall Merchandise Harvest is pouring daily into Rich's. Seventy-one years of experience have given us seniority rights with the great manufacturers... seventy-one years of buying for Atlanta have told us exactly what you want... seventy-one years in the world's markets have given us the ability to bring you the Cream of the Crop at lower-than-average prices!

Harvest Month is here! And Rich's great Harvest is ready... Plenty is spread everywhere over our seven wide floors... and Southerners in every walk of life are feeling, once more, that it's good to be alive... that it's good to be a "Harvester at Rich's".

When Daughter MY DAY Spirit of Friendship Girl Thinks Takes a Hand

By Elizabeth Boykin.

Jessie H. wears a size 14 and looks more like a college girl herself, so we practically fell off the Christmas tree when she turned up at a party the other day with a daughter who'd just graduated from Skidmore. A pretty daughter what's more, though we'd certainly keep her tucked out of sight if we were Jessie!

We'd never been to Jessie's house (as she was a fairly casual acquaintance) till the day the club met there. Then we saw daughter Betty's fine Italian hand. For she'd introduced ever so many smart decorating details.

"Oh, Betty snubbed the house like everything," laughed Jessie. "So we let her fix it up, though we'd always felt pretty sentimental about it the way it was. But I must admit it's improved a let under her touch." lot under her touch.

Vintage of 1920. It had started out as a taupe -remember the vintage of 1920? The walls were a light gray and furniture and rugs were all in a dark taupe gray. It was comfortable and friendly, but the effect must have been rather drab before Betty took a hand, because there wasnt' enough color contrast Now the room is as smart as everything, with only fairly mi-

In place of two nondescript mahogany frame chairs that had seen their best day, they bought a pair of French open arm chairs with jade velvet upholstery. This was all the new purchases in furni-ture, but the curtains were changed to white sheer voile with draperies of flowered chintz on a yel low ground. This same chintz was used to slip-cover the sofa. One over-stuffed chair got a new cover in a striped material in gray covered in a soft coral.

ROCHESTER, Minn.—I have spoken several times of the efficiency which marks all that is done in this clinic, but I have not mentioned the extraordinary way in which the human personal touch is preserved. This has impressed me from the very beginning. A good example of it is the fact that last evening, a doctor who is not in direct charge of my son's case, telephoned me to say that he and his wife were going to meet my daughter-in-law on her arrival this morning and would stop at the hotel for me if I cared to go to the train.

and would stop at the hotel for the angle of the train.

At 8:00 o'clock this morning, there they both were in the hotel lobby. Who could help being warmed and cheered by such friendliness? Somehow a very wonderful combination has been achieved here. Science is never neglected, but everyone, even the busiest doctor, has time to be kind. The attitude spreads to the patients. A woman whose husband was seriously ill and whom I had only just met, stopped to inquire about James and to say cheering things drawn from her own experience.

Just before leaving Hyde Park, I received an interesting character doll from a woman who lives in California. I have been meaning to tell you about her letter ever since, because it was different from the usual appeal. She told me that she was too old for WPA work and a few months too young for an old-age pension for WPA work and a few months too young for an old-age pension, but in any case she would rather do something "on her own." She evolved the idea of making dolls to represent various historical women. She wished to know if I could suggest a way whereby she could find a market. Her idea, of course, is not entirely original, but she seemed to be such a spirited elderly lady that I cannot help hoping that some of the schools in her locality will decide that a group of correctly dressed dolls is a good medium for interesting children in history.

At various times, I have given my grandchildren dolls I have bought in foreign countries, to familiarize them with the types of people and the costumes of other lands. They are never useful as toys, but as a collection simply to be looked at that can serve as a stimulus to interest children in various lines of study, I think these dolls are valuable. I know that in some of the WPA and NYA projects for museums and schools expert workers in this field have projects for museums and schools expert workers in this field have been developed and the dolls have been most useful. # Letter From Atlantan Describes Visit To England and France

In Honor of Dowager Queen Mary Offered at Meeting

By Sally Forth.

LETTERS from Mrs. Felton Jones, of Atlanta, Rome and Florida, describe her visits in England and France. Her trip to the Ascot races on top of a "coach and four" gave her the thrill of her lifetime. She saw King George and Queen Elizabeth open the races, attended by gentlemen and ladies in waiting, and members of the royal family riding in the procession headed by their Britannic majesties. Mrs. Jones went to a garden party in honor of Queen Mary, who was dressed in a pink and white gown to match her exquisite complexion. Her white coat was collared in ice blue fur.

At present Mrs. Jones is at Loire in France, where she is visiting Baroness de Moncuit at her Chateau la Matholiere, which has been in the family for hundreds of years. From there she will go to Chateau D'Autrey to visit the sister of her present hostess. At the conclusion of her visit to Paris, Mrs. Jones expects to go to the southern part of

Of Orphans' Home

An annual scholarship was offered by Shorter College for the benefit of a girl from the Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home at the recent meeting of the executive committee of the orphans' home. According to the statement of Dr. Paul Cousins, president of Shorter, the scholarship carries full tuition and board, leaving only clothes and incidentals to be furnished. Through the years the home rears many boys and girls capable of taking higher education, and to some of these Shorter's proffered scholarship will open doors of opportunity that would otherwise necessarily remain closed.

Today 232 children from the nome will enter the schools of Fulton county. Those under school age will be given kindergarten in-struction at the home under the supervision of Miss Nonnie Belle The students recently graduated from Russell High are endeavoring to secure business positions. One of the girls, Lennie Wallace, has entered training at Georgia Baptist hospital.

Announcement was made of the linen shower, given annually by the W. M. U., of the Atlanta association, Mrs. J. W. Awtry, superintendent. This shower will be given at the home on September 30 through the department of personal service with Mrs. E. G. Clinkscales as chairman. All buildings will be open for inspection and friends of the home are invited.

Mrs. M. H. Dameron, who will move to Greenville, S. C., at an early date, offered her resignation as trustee of the home at the meeting. For more than six years Mrs. Dameron has been a member of this board, serving as sec-

Miller Hurls Crackers to 8-2 Win in Final Game of Season

Yates and 6 Ex-Champions in National Amateur Field Today ATLANTA TAKES

Wonder what the odds are against a team winning a Shaughnessy play-off?

There are only four teams involved and, at most, a winner has to play only 12 games.

And yet the odds are vastly higher against winning the play-off than in finishing first in a 154-game schedule. The odds against winning any short series when evenly balanced teams are involved should be tre-Which brings up the point that the Crackers, having faced rather tremendous odds all season, are just before

Goodman, the defending champion, and Charlie Yates, his Walk-

No, the Crackers were perfectly willing to start their campaign to play in the Dixie series at Russwood, where they lost five out of six on the last road trip.

It seems something in the nature of taking a long chance, but the Crackers are in a lot better shape for the Chicks than they were on that last trip and they have Uncle Tom Sunkel for use in the opening game. Uncle Sunkel has had quite a record against Memphis this year. He has given the Chicks, for the most part, a lot of loud

It may be interesting to review the record of Cracker pitchers against the play-off teams.

GIVES 'EM ONE RUN.

Uncle Sunkel has given Memphis one run in 27 innings this season. I am sorry that records are not available to determine whether or not that one was earned.

In winning three and losing none against the Chicks, Sunkel has given up only 11 hits and struck out 19. So this correspondent cheerfully selects Sunkel for the opening round of the play-off. The Crackers can shift for themselves when they meet either New Orleans or Nashville in the final round. Bill Beckman is a good gamble for the second game at Memphis. He has won three and lost three against Billy Southworth's club.

Beckman seems due for a good game. So if Beckman can come along and back up Sunkel in the second game at Memphis, the Crackers will be off to the races.

The final three games of the opening round will be played in Atlanta. Sunkel could pitch one or possibly two of these games if needed.

Sunkel is to Memphis what Big Jim Lindsey used to be to Nashville. The word is anathema. Or, if you prefer, just plain poison.

The following table shows how Cracker pitchers have although the greens were slowed fared against the play-off teams:

CRACKERS FINISH STRONG.

The Crackers closed out the regular season with their fourth straight over Chattanooga. The boys sort of mixed it up, having pitchers and catchers in the outfield and outfielders in the Mailho's performance at first base was one of the closing highlights. His sparkling play stamped him as a first-class right fielder.

Dick West, of Chattanooga, completed a versatile job of playing every position for the Lookouts. Manager Paul Richards has no fears about the Shaughnessy play-off. He said it is possible for Sunkel to pitch as many as three of the games against Memphis, if necessary.

One of the significant features about the Crackers, as they prepare to play Memphis, is the fact that they have snapped out of an enduring batting slump.

They are rapping the ball smartly again. Win or lose, however, the Crackers have given the fans of Atlanta one of the most interesting seasons in Southern league history.

They are not going to be easy to eliminate. That remains foregone conclusion. Eddie Rose is back in the fold and is hitting well. The rest of the club is in fine shape and pitching aid is represented in a couple of fine youngsters named Onnie Robinson and Pete Stein.

OLE TIMERS HAVE FUN.

Engel looked a lot like Santa Claus, but that was an optical illusion. Joe sold $60,000 worth of assorted ball players this year—from his seventh-place Chattanooga club.

When Engel started pitching, they brought out a plate fully seven times as large as the ordinary plate and dusted it off carefully. Then the Atlanta Ole Timers began dusting off Engel. Old Timers said Engel's pitching looked no different than when he was in his prime. At first it was thought all he had was a prayer, but apparently he didn't even have a prayer.

A CLASSIC RETORT.

It was reported that Dick Lanahan told Engel he was thinking of retiring from baseball after this year. "What!" Engel exclaimed. "Do you want to break up the national open polo championship

Only Reason Given for Dismissal Is 'Change Needed for 1939.'

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—(P)— Frankie Frisch was released today The announcement was made by President Sam Breadon just before the start of today's game with the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates. Frisch's release is effective after today's game.

Coach Mike Gonzales will run the team during the remainder of the season. The Fordham Flash has been with the Gas House Gang since 1927. He became manager during the middle of the 1933 season.

The Chicago Cubs regained undisputed possession of second place and climbed within 3 1-2 burgh Pirates Sunday when they cinnati Reds while the Buccaneers

Big Bill Lee outpitched Paul Derringer to score his 18th victory. He held the Reds to four hits, fanned four and didn't allow a man to reach third. Derringer, allowing seven hits, failed in his second attempt to win his 20th game. Stanley Hack figured in scoring both Cub runs. He singled with two out in the third and scored on Billy Herman's double. In the eighth he hit a homer over the right field wall. The defeat dropped the Reds to third place, 4 1-2 games off the pace.

DEAN FANS SEVEN. Paul Dean, who was shipped back to the Texas league this spring as a last resort to heal his sore arm, made a successful return to the big show by pitching the

St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-4 victory over the Pirates. Although giving up 12 hits, Dean tightened in the pinches and fanned seven. The Cardinals started the game under the management of Frankie Frisch and finished under the leadership of Mike Gonzales. Frisch's resignation became known during the game and he left the field. Gonzales was appointed

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

After three months in New York, living with Michael and Bonnie Hill and finding only odd jobs of art work to do. Lyle Marsh's drawings impress Suzanne Gibson, head of a large department store's art department. Bonnie, who went to art school in Baltimore with Liye and had refused to accept payment for board when there was no work because Lyle had to send money to her ailing mother in Miami, predicts a brilliant future for the girl who had shown so much talent in school. Suzanne believes that all Lyle needs is experience and is delighted when Stephen Tennant, the young vice president, asks who draw a certain illustration, which happened to be Lyle's first work for the store. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

The very first night, Lyle remains late until she gets the figure she is drawing "right" and when she leaves the elevators have stopped running. As she walks dewnstairs she hears hurrying footsteps and turns, startled. She goes on not knowing that the tall man is Jeff Conway, one of the younger executives. Jeff, who can't resist a pretty face and is always falling in loce, follows her to a cafeteria, contrives to stand beside her with waiting tray, and introduces himself. She likes him, his contaious smile, and shawers his interested questions about herself. When they go out it is raining and he takes her home in a taxi. He asks for a dinner date for the next evening. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

The Very first night, Lyle remains late soft and sweet. And aff waiter had gone away wit order, Jeff asked, "Shall we because he wanted to hold his arms. On the elevator they looked at each other and smiled. Lyle thought, "Was it just last night that I met him, less than 24 hours ago? You live years from the time love though it may be only minutes."

A shining new gray coupe waited at the curb. Lyle asked, "New? It's beau-
